PRESS RELEASE

Genolier Swiss Medical Network changes its name to Swiss Medical Network.

Genolier, 3 December 2015 – Swiss Medical Network SA is from today the new name of the second largest network of private clinics in Switzerland. By changing its name, the group claims its maturity and can better reflect its national status as well as its federating role for its 15 clinics.

Initially, Genolier Swiss Medical Network was a network of clinics formed around the clinic that gave it its name: Clinique de Genolier. After the takeover in 2004 of Clinique de Montchoisi and the subsequent acquisitions in French speaking Switzerland, Genolier Swiss Medical Network initiated its expansion in the German speaking part of Switzerland and in Ticino in 2010, supported by the reputation of Genolier. Today, the group is present across the whole country of Switzerland and has brought its clinics to a high level of medical excellence. Swiss Medical Network claims its maturity by this change of name.

Swiss Medical Network has the intention to pursue its original vision, namely the creation of a strong national player with clinics dedicated to offering the best service to their patient and a first class infrastructure to their independent physicians. Swiss Medical Network has the ambition to be the preferred partner for the public institutions, the authorities, the insurance sector and all stakeholders of the medical sector in Switzerland.

This name changes only applies to the group, and every clinic will continue to operate under its own name and visual identity. The organisation as a network makes up the strength of Swiss Medical Network, who wants above all to promote the identity of its clinics and reinforce their local anchorage.
